

LaRone Greer is a county social worker in Family Assessment/Child Welfare & Children's Mental Health, and also Director of Project Imani. He has over 15 years of mental health case manager experience with African-American boys and their families, with 7 of those years working for the Amherst Wilder Foundation with Project KOFI. He has served as an Advisory Commissioner for the African-American Men's Project, served as an Advisory Council Committee member for the Urban Learner Framework for Hamline College, serves on the Board of Directors for Communities U Knighted, and has also served on many committees for STARS for Children's Mental Health. LaRone is a seasoned mental health practitioner in school-based mental health. LaRone believes a "multi-systemic therapy" is the best approach to therapy that includes the patient, as well as caregivers. LaRone has spoken locally in Minnesota, as well as nationally, on topics that range from Young Black Males to Juvenile Justice to African American Children's Mental Health to Children in the System of Care to Diversity & Culture in the Workplace. LaRone Greer was awarded the Presidential Scholarship from the University of St. Thomas, where he earned his Masters in Social Work degree (MSW), and completed his clinical paper on "Evaluating the Effectiveness of Afrocentric Programming in Schools: The Professionals' Perspective."
